The Four Way Test
of the things we think say or do....

1. Is It the Truth
2. Is It Fair to All Concerned
3. Will it Build Goodwill and better Friendships
4. Will it be Beneficial to all Concerned

Cody Cunningham – MISD Information Officer

The McKinney ISD Communications Department exists to support the efforts of campuses and the district in building relationships and communicating timely information to staff, students, parents, and the community. We utilize the district website, e-newsletters, MET cable television, publications, an automated phone calling system, media relations, and community partnerships to inform and engage the public.

In addition to providing relevant information to stakeholders, the Department coordinates events that honor both students and staff, including the annual Back-to-School Convocation, McKinney ISD Teacher of the Year Dinner, Distinguished Student Dinner, and the Retirement and Years of Service Banquet.

The McKinney ISD Board of Trustees accepted the recommendation of a citizen's bond committee and voted unanimously to call a bond election for May 14, 2011. The $191,075,000 bond program includes campus additions to accommodate future growth, renovation of existing facilities, safety, security, and technology upgrades.

The bond package includes significant renovations and additions to McKinney High School and McKinney North High School. In addition, the renovations would replace old roofs and HVAC systems, upgrade the district's energy management system, upgrade fire and alarm systems, and add security vestibules at a number of campuses. The bond program will also include classroom additions and upgrades to meet current instructional standards as well as new or renovated space for career and technology programs.

Four ways to promote Rotary Peace Centers

Former Rotary Peace Fellow Nai-Hua Wu says the opportunity to learn about conflict resolution was the best experience of her life.

"I truly feel that this world is a better place because of Rotarians' efforts," says Wu, who attended the Rotary Peace Center at International Christian University in Tokyo from 2005 to 2007. "It was my first experience with what Rotary is all about. There is no division of nationality, and Rotarians work together for a better world."

Wu, now pursuing a doctorate in management at Texas A&M University's Mays Business School, is one of more than 500 graduates of the Rotary Peace Centers program.

Many former peace fellows work for high-profile nongovernmental and international organizations, such as the United Nations and the World Bank.

Prospective candidates have until 1 July to apply for fellowships starting in 2012.

Here are four ways you can promote the program and find candidates in your community:

1. Involve the media

Send out press releases to the local media asking them to promote the Rotary Peace Centers program and the upcoming application deadline in an article or news broadcast. Write letters to the editor expressing the need for peace in these tumultuous times and highlighting the work of Rotary Peace Centers and alumni.

2. Reach out to the community

Hold informational sessions and invite the community. A current or former Rotary Peace Fellow could serve as your guest speaker, and you could show the Building Peace DVD as part of the program. Get permission from your local college or university to share brochures or post materials in high-traffic areas on campus, such as student centers. Peace fellows can come from the professional sphere too, so be sure to send brochures to libraries, community groups, and other local organizations.

3. Give presentations to other Rotary clubs

Local club members may know the perfect peace fellow. Give a guest presentation at another club in your district or region to inform fellow Rotarians about the program. This can also help open a dialogue about peace, which is central to Rotary's mission.

4. Spread the word

Talk about the Rotary Peace Centers every chance you get, from club and district meetings to dinner parties. You can also promote the program through social networks like Facebook and Twitter, and through your club or district newsletter or website.

Whatever approach you take, the secret is persistent networking, says Bob Fels, who has served as a member of the Rotary Peace Centers Committee and chairs the Rotary Peace Fellowships subcommittee for District 9800 (Australia). "The essence of our approach is get Rotarians to use their networks to ask organizations that employ peace workers to identify candidates. However, you have to persist with the organizations. Keep knocking on the door."

Today's Thoughts in Honor of

Volunteer Recognition Day – April 20

Wherever a man turns he can find someone who needs him.

- Albert Schweitzer (1875 – 1965)

World Penguin Day – April 25

"Penguins mate for life. That doesn't surprise me much because they all look alike. It's not like they're going to meet a really new, great looking penguin someday."

- Anonymous

Tax Collectors

A man walks into a restaurant with his pet alligator under his arm.

"Do you serve tax collectors?" he asks the barman.

"Of course," says the barman.

"Well," replies the man, "I'll have a beer, and my alligator will have a tax collector."
