First Flag Holiday

A hearty Thanks and a big congratulations to everyone who helped us pull off a very successful opening to our first flag holiday of the season. Bill and Jeff have done a great job as flag coordinators keeping this all organized and getting us off to a good start. Chuck has been incredible with all of the administration, communication, and organization. Sandi and Juli have worked diligently entering names into the data base. All rotarians worked hard on prep and mapping of routes. Tim and Steve have been instrumental in keeping the database up and organized along with printing and sending out route sheets. A huge thank you to the large crowds we had at the shed to distribute and bring back in the flags, and a special thank you to Lyle, Chuck, Jeff, and Bill who put in many hours handling any issue that arose over the weekend with missed flags and what ever else was asked of them. I thank all of you and the club thanks all of you, we are off to a great start. A lot of new preps will need to be done prior to Flag Day as we had many new leases come in during and after the Memorial Day weekend so much help will still be needed, but I know all will step up as they did for the first one and it will go off without a hitch.

World Water Summit draws attention to water's pivotal role

Water and sanitation are at the nexus of Rotary's six areas of focus, says Ron Denham, of the Rotary Club of Toronto Eglinton, Ont., Canada.

"Without water, we'll never have conflict resolution. Without water, we'll never have basic education and literacy," he explains. Denham, who has served as chair of the Water and Sanitation Rotarian Action Group (WASRAG) since its founding in 2007, is stepping down from his post at the end of this month.

On 21 June, he'll speak at the group's fifth World Water Summit, in Lisbon, Portugal. The Rotarian caught up with Denham recently for a conversation about water and sanitation.

THE ROTARIAN: You recently got back from Uganda. What were you doing there?

DENHAM: In Uganda, all 74 Rotary clubs have come together as part of one water program. It's the first time this has happened anywhere. The program was launched by the Ugandan minister of water and environment a year and a half ago. It's going to transform the country.

TR: What has changed to make such a program possible?

DENHAM: Traditionally, Rotary clubs have thought about small projects. The project might be building a borehole, digging a well, putting in a pipeline. When they've done that, they say, "Now we're finished." The problem is that many of those applications have been unsustainable, because there's no emphasis on behavioral change. There's no emphasis on working with people in the community so they can sustain the systems themselves. So when the Rotarians in Uganda decided they wanted to make a significant impact, I said, "Let's stop talking about small projects. Let's think big." Getting water and sanitation is not an end in itself – it's the means to an end.

TR: You have a PhD in mechanical engineering. How did you get so deep into water?

DENHAM: I was senior partner at a Canadian management consulting firm. Most of our projects in the developing world were rooted in access to water. One project, at Lake Manzala in Egypt, was based on aquaculture and agriculture. In Greece, there was one in the horticultural business, which, again, depends on water. I realized what the impact of water could be. In 2004, incoming RI President Glenn Estess asked me to lead a task force on water. Then in 2007, we formed WASRAG.

TR: Why join WASRAG?

DENHAM: To engage in discussions about how to ensure your project is sustainable. We will help you promote your project among other clubs and find funding. The exchange of information is important. For example, people in many parts of the world are making bio-sand filters and helping communities use them, but the practices are slightly different. On the website, we have a forum where users can share their experiences and learn from one another.

TR: Your term ends this year. What happens next for WASRAG, and for you?

DENHAM: [Past RI President] Bill Boyd is taking over as chair, which is fantastic. He's probably one of the most highly regarded Rotarians there is, and he's very enthusiastic about water. As for me, I told Bill that I will do whatever he wants me to do. I don't think I'm going to retire quietly. My wife wouldn't tolerate that

Today's Thoughts in Honor of

World Environment Day – June 5

For in the final analysis, our most basic common link, is that we all inhabit this small planet, we all breathe the same air, we all cherish our children's futures, and we are all mortal.

- John F. Kennedy (1917 – 1963)

Best Friends Day– June 8

Without friends no one would choose to live, though he had all other goods.

- Aristotle (384 BC – 322 BC)

The CIA had an opening for an assassin. After all of the background checks, interviews, and testing were done, there were three finalists, two men and a woman.

For the final test, the CIA agents took one of the men to a large metal door and handed him a gun. "We must know that you will follow your instructions, no matter what the circumstances. Inside this room, you will find your wife sitting in a chair. Kill her!" The man said, "You can't be serious. I could never shoot my wife." The agent said, "Then you're not the right man for this job."

The second man was given the same instructions. He took the gun and went into the room. All was quiet for about five minutes. Then the man came out with tears in his eyes. "I tried, but I can't kill my wife." The agent said, "You don't have what it takes. Take your wife and go home."

Finally, it was the woman's turn. She was given the same instructions, to kill her husband. She took the gun and went into the room. Shots were heard, one shot after another. They heard screaming, crashing, and banging on the walls. After a few minutes, all was quiet. The door opened slowly and there stood the woman. She wiped the sweat from her brow and said, "You guys didn't tell me the gun was loaded with blanks. I had to beat him to death with the chair."
