Jeff Mead – Director – McKinney Rink Operations and Hockey Programs

Jeff grew up in Glens Falls, NY, a small town an hour away from Lake Placid, NY. He played ice hockey from age 5 through High School, in Glens Falls and then went to Potsdam State, where he played NCAA ice hockey for his school from 1994-1997. The team won their conference championship—SUNYAC Conference—in 1996 and qualified for the NCAA Championships where they finished in the Quarterfinal round.

Upon graduation from Potsdam, Jeff started working in the ice hockey / ice rink business in 1999 for a company named Polar Ice Entertainment. He began his work as a hockey director in Cedar Rapids, IA. A year later, Jeff was transferred to Phoenix, AZ and continued at their facility as a hockey director. In 2001, he was promoted to General Manager of a new Polar Ice facility in Gurnee, IL—just north of Chicago. After spending 2 years in Gurnee, Jeff was promoted to Regional Director of Operations and relocated to the DFW area.

Jeff recently accepted his current position with the Dallas Stars / Dr Pepper StarCenters and will help open and operate their newest facility—Dr Pepper StarCenter McKinney @ Craig Ranch.

Today's Thoughts in Honor of Aviation Day – Aug 19

"When once you have tasted flight, you will forever walk the earth with your eyes turned skyward, for there you have been, and there you will always long to return."

- Leonardo da Vinci (1452 – 1519)

Vesuvius Day – August 24

"We live too much in books and not enough in nature, and we are very much like the simpleton of a Pliny the Younger, who went on studying a Greek author while before his eyes Vesuvius was overwhelming five cities beneath the ashes"

- Anatole France (1844 – 1924)

Pamela Zeigler-Petty Honored

At last weeks meeting current Club President Nathan White presented a clock he picked up at the Rotary International Convention in Birmingham, England to Pamela to thank her for service as our clubs past president.

INNOCENCE IS PRICELESS

One Sunday morning, the pastor noticed little Alex standing in the foyer of the church staring up at a large plaque. It was covered with names and small American flags mounted on either side of it. The six-year old had been staring at the plaque for some time, so the pastor walked up, stood beside the little boy, and said quietly, "Good morning, Alex."

"Good morning Pastor," he replied, still focused on the plaque. "Pastor, what is this?"

The pastor said, "Well, son, it's a memorial to all the young men and women who died in the service."

Soberly, they just stood together, staring at the large plaque. Finally, little Alex's voice, barely audible and trembling with fear, asked,

"Which service, the 8:30 or the 10:30?"

Extreme Makeover -- Rotarian Edition

Sam Clifton isn't letting his 15 minutes of fame go to his head. In fact, if he had his way, no one would know his company led the build on the TV reality show Extreme Makeover: Home Edition, which provides new homes for families in need.

"I asked the producers if I could do this without being known. I didn't want the media attention. But then I thought about how great it would be to get other people in front of the camera, especially guys in the construction business who've been going through a rough time," says Clifton, a member of the Rotary Club of Springfield Southeast, Missouri, USA.

The rest is showbiz history. More than 600 skilled laborers -- some unemployed and many from competing firms -- volunteered to help build a 3,300-square-foot home in just six days starting 14 project this size, which included building a barn, chicken coop, and greenhouse, would normally take a crew of 50 about six months.

The five-bedroom house in Ash Grove replaces the 800-square-foot home where Chris and Niki Hampton and their six children had been living. As with every episode of the award-winning program, the family was selected from a group of families in need.

Clifton not only managed the job around the clock, often sleeping in a trailer on-site to be available for late-night questions, but also found volunteers and donors for every phase, to do everything from providing food to landscaping. He says he learned early on the importance of having the right people beside you.

Among the key players were two members of Clifton's Rotary club, Judy Bilyeu and Michael Wehrenberg. The corporate marketing director of Metro Builders Supply, Bilyeu helped with fundraising and recruiting volunteers. She also worked with the show's designers to select $30,000 worth of lighting and appliances from her company's inventory to donate to the project.

Wehrenberg, who is president of Wehrenberg Design Company, developed the project's Web site.

"Through the site, he also was responsible for volunteer recruitment, donor recognition, and scheduling updates, as well as supplying a visual timeline through photos," Michelle says.

It takes a village to raise a house

In addition to the construction crew, the Cliftons estimate that between 1,500 and 1,700 people volunteered over the six days. The community donated 95 percent of the materials for the build, and raised enough money to help pay off the family's existing mortgage.

Clifton admits he'd never organized a community service project before. But he'd do it again. "It's a fun thing to do and definitely rewarding," says Clifton, who was asked by the show's producers if he'd help with another build.

A Rotarian since 2008, he says he'd also like to help with a service project through Rotary. "It's imperative you have the right heart. You can't be an 'I' person. If you go into this looking to get something out of it, then it's not going to work."

The episode is scheduled to air during the show's seventh season on the ABC Television Network.
